

PLAY

BLOG

brother, so there's no need to worry about food cause he manages to cook when he can, and no worries cause he can really cook very very well!... and of course I need to sacrifice a "little" : I mean by washing the dishes and cleaning the kitchen, every time I'm doing it, I wonder how my maid can do such thing and even more everyday. Oh well... the apartment is really nice, comfortable and very handy for me, cause it's really near my school (I just need to walk about 10-15 minutes).

Heinn... I really need to retouch this thing, it has been a long time since the last time I was here. I always thought about writing something but every time I log in, I end up giving up or not knowing what to write.

It has been a month since I left Macau, well, I am in Australia now, specifically in Brisbane currently studying the foundation year in IES (International Education Services) and hoping to be able to get in UQ (University of Queensland) next year.

Since I got here, my life has completely changed, well, not really "since", mostly after my mum went back to Macau (it has been quite hard not having my mum here now, since she was the one who always took care of me). It is a huge pleasure and bliss having my parents (whom I love and miss a lot) and my grandparents (from whom I have a lot of respect) around me since I was born. They took good care of me and I always had what I needed and wanted. I have everything and I've got no more to ask for!

I'm actually living in an apartment with my

And what about my school? It's a very small place with 7 floors with a huge amount of people inside, so try to imagine when it's time for lunch: it's really very busy and noisy! Everyone gathers in the "Common Student Hall" and there's not enough seats and tables for everyone, so the odd ones just sit on the floor (poor ones, luckily I was only a victim once!) still is fine though. Most of them or nearly 99.9% are Asians (from HK, Indonesia, Japan, Singapore, Malaysia, Korea, Taiwan, China, Vietnam, Saudi Arabia,... you name it...and of course Macau!) and the 0.1% left are from Brazil, UK... So it's more likely to be mixed up with other Asian cultures and I also ended

BLOG

PLAY

BLOG

BLOG

up knowing some words of other languages, but I can hardly remember now. I still don't know many people, but the ones that I know are really nice, fun to be with and quite good at everything.

About the classes, well I'm taking:

- Biology, Chemistry, Research Psychology, Academic English and Maths.

All of them are STILL running fine and smooth, and I hope to be like this all along this year and I hope I can get good grades, well... I HAVE TO! Some of the teachers are quite good, they pay a lot of attention to their students and others are okay. Still nothing really bad at all. Oh I nearly forgot, my timetable! I don't really like it but I don't bother to explain! It just makes me tired and exhausted at the end of EACH DAY!

Although everyday is quite harsh, I really enjoy living and studying here! I won't say that Brisbane is better/worse than Macau, it is just slightly DIFFERENT and is really nice to be here, excluding the fact that the shopping centers close at 5 pm, so I do really get bored sometimes. In fact after classes, my mood for shopping is already vanished and the only thing in my mind is to get home and SLEEP, but of course there's no such thing until my homework is done! Yet my life is still good!

Still... I miss my family (I missed Chinese New Year this year! I always liked this festival, everybody is cheerful and happy, my family gets really noisy, funny and crowded at those days, well actually is noisy everyday! I MISS those moments and mainly all of them!) I do miss my friends: VINO (it was really good talking with you on the phone and knowing that you're much better in your work! It was a relief knowing that you'll be in Macau in X'mas, we can finally meet! I really miss you a lot!), Carakel (you still need to pay me a dinner/buffet, you know you are always a RICH GIRL! And what about the driving thing? I believe you can do it, hahaha! Believe me I do miss you!), Celia (Ms. Coconut, I have already heard the word 'DIET' a thousand times and today you're still saying DIET once more! Anyway, I'm looking forward to see you in X'mas! I miss the craziest time with you!), Elsa (I don't know when I will be able to see you again! I didn't hear much from you lately, I rarely see you online and vice-versa! Last time I gave you my SIGN OF HOPE! I'm still here! hehe! I miss you Fat Fat Baby!) Elisa (hope you're doing well in Melbourne, I know you're feeling homesick since the first day, but sooner or later I hope you will overcome it! Keep in touch!)

All the best for everyone!

I thought I could do some revision today but I'm lazy to do so, maybe later cause I need to wash the dishes now.

BLOG

BLOG

