

THE FOOLISH TRAMP

There was a tramp who always loiters on the street. Passers-by often made fun of him.

People often showed the tramp two coins (a 5-dollar and a 10-dollar) and asked the tramp to choose from either one of them. Every time, the tramp took the 5-dollar coin. Passers-by thought that the tramp is extremely foolish.

One day, a kind-hearted man asked the tramp: "Don't you really know how to distinguish from a 5-dollar and a 10-dollar coin?"

The tramp smiled and responded: "Imagine if I choose the 10-dollar coin, they would never let me choose again."

WHY DID YOU EAT ME?

The five-year-old Queenie found that there was a scar on the belly of her mother. She was so curious and asked her mother about it.

Her mother gave her a good explanation, "Here is where the doctor cut an opening and pulled you out 5 years ago."

Queenie looked at her mother angrily and asked: "So why did you eat me?"

JOKES

MOVIE TICKET

One evening, an African aborigine traveled to Hong Kong to watch a movie. After he had bought a ticket at the counter, he entered the theatre.

Not long after, he rushed to the ticket counter to buy a ticket and returned to the theatre. The sales assistant wondered.

After a while, the aborigine rushed to buy another ticket again. The sales assistant asked him for the reason. The aborigine shouted in anger, "I don't know what's going on, the woman at the entrance would tear my ticket when I enter the theatre."
