London Bridge is falling down,
falling down, falling down!

I always enjoy spending my summer holidays with my parents because they always travel with me. I have been to many places, such as: Japan, America, New Zealand, Australia, Egypt, Europe and so on ...

Among all the wonderful trips I had, the trip to London is the most remarkable one. We didn't join in any tour, so my parents and I prepared lots of information about London, the scenic areas in London, recommended eating areas in London and of course the shopping areas in London.

When I was small, I usually sang the song 'London Bridge' with my mother. In fact, I may have forgotten about the real name of this song. However, I am sure that all of us will be so familiar with the song lyrics. 'London Bridge is falling down, falling down, falling down, London Bridge is falling down ...' At that time I have never seen the real picture of London Bridge, I once asked my mother a question: 'Is London Bridge really falling down?'

The third day of my stay in London gave me the answer. This was really my first time to see the London Bridge. I walked on it and it was not a long bridge, anyway. However, it was a beautiful bridge. I felt so close to it. When I was walking on it with my parents, I held my mother's hands and we sang the same song that we used to sing when I was small. I felt the warmth in it. This bridge led me back to the memory of my childhood.

After we crossed the bridge, we took a walk in a garden close to it. Then my mother decided to take some pictures of the bridge. To my surprise, it was really difficult to take the full picture of the bridge because we were too close to it. In order to take a full picture of it, I kept running farther and farther. Then I used my mobile to take pictures of it, but I still couldn't. So I kept running and running, the only thing in my mind was the full picture of the bridge. I finally forgot about my parents, but now I got the picture. I took the above picture of the bridge. Then I ran back to my parents with the wonderful picture that I had taken. My mother was so excited when she saw the picture, and from that day onwards, this picture became the wallpaper of her mobile. This wallpaper reminds her of the effort I tried in taking the picture. And for me, this picture reminds me of the wonderful trip I had with my parents last summer.
